Michelle Hendler Discusses Imminent Bankruptcy Filings in South Florida

South Florida Business Journal
4.10.20

According to the South Florida Business Journal, local bankruptcy attorneys agree that an avalanche of bankruptcy filings will occur as a result of the novel coronavirus pandemic. Because of the recently passed CARES Act, which pledges millions in relief to small businesses through SBA loans, the claims will be stalled for two to three months.

Michelle Hendler, a Creditors’ Rights & Bankruptcy partner in the firm's Miami office, describes how the Small Business Reorganization Act has changed the definition of a small business and could ultimately give businesses a better chance at surviving bankruptcy and retaining control of operations.
