

ENERGY

The energy industry is one that is constantly evolving while being controlled by both government regulations and competitive market forces. As representatives for electrical power companies, oil companies and service stations, we help clients minimize disruption and make the most of opportunity.

We advise our clients regarding critical aspects of the business that delve into corporate and international law, litigation, government regulations and real estate. Our lawyers help clients who are acquiring U.S. and foreign assets, while our litigation team pursues cases in court, mediation and through international arbitration.

We also have substantial experience in real estate, including eminent domain. In this area, we have represented major oil companies and service station owners in numerous condemnation proceedings. This often involves working with administrative agencies to gain full value of real property and negotiating for fair compensation. Our work also includes environmental and land use matters.

Our collective experience in the energy industry is considerable, offering clients the skill, knowledge and effectiveness they need.

Professionals

Joseph W. Bain

Scott A. Glass

Steven M. Greenberg

Harold E. Morlan III

Harold "Ed" Patricoff

Kristin Drecktrah Paz

Olga M. Pina

Yine Rodriguez Perez

David A. Shontz

Aleksey Shtivelman

Michael P. Silver

Michael A. Sjuggerud

ENERGY

Kenneth W. Wright

Related Practices

Administrative Law and Licensing

Corporate

COVID-19 Solutions

Intellectual Property

Litigation

Real Estate